When we first got down here it was quite wavy from hurricane Thomas. The water is still murky but yesterday the waves were down.

We were on the beach talking to friends when John spotted a dorsal right behind our boat heading for Leeward. we swam out got in the boat and followed I got in the water with scooter and JoJo turned around to come greet me:)) it was so murky I could barely see him but we did our nose to rostrum greeting he then did a few barrel rolls under me I lost sight of him then he popped up right beside me. He then headed toward Leeward again and in the murk I couldn't follow him so I got in the boat and he took a ride all the way to the end of Pine Cay 45 mins or so then branched off for some fishing. He looks great—nice and chubby and of course gorgeous! We had bought a new motor and I was wondering if he would know who we were as it sounds way different but now he knows so hopefully will come when he hears it. John fought off some rival boats that tried to steal JoJo. They almost ran into us but JoJo chose to stay with us:)))

Had a great time with JoJo yesterday found him by sand bar in front of Coral House he wanted a ride to grace point got some nice swims with him he was more interactive then the other days. As the beaches dive boat came in he wanted to check it out and eventually followed it right to the dock by this time there was a dolphin traffic jam!! I got in boat and watched he traveled thru the swim area some people oblivious to his swimming right beside them :) after passed thru the swim area he came toward our boat and I got back in he wanted to fish so he did some crevice fishing (caught 3 of them ) then he wanted to head back down the coast so we called Tricia a horse friend from home. she ran down the beach and we picked her up so she could meet JoJo. more swimming and fun!! he looks fat and happy no new bumps or cuts!!

We had another nice day with JoJo. Found him at Grace point, swam a bit, then he wanted a ride to Parrot Cay (that's a really long way!!!!). He then went for a fish and caught a big fish, lay on his back, and ate it. A little more swimming then back to Half Moon Beach where he disappeared!! We found him later on following snorkel boats. He couldn't decide which snorkel boat he wanted to follow!!

water better :) Found JoJo right off. he wanted to stay with us ALL DAY I almost froze but it was so worth it!! we were visited by around 20 tour boats and he went up to each one but always came back to ours I think he has us trained to go where ever he wants and at what speed he likes!!

For the first time he followed me in the water all over we went almost all the way to Grace point from leeward with him right behind me I of course had my scooter. I also lead him away from the dive boat and brought him over to Ocean club to visit some swimmers but they were too aggressive and he veered away so we went to visit another boat instead. At one point he was just coming out of sleep mode and I tried playing hide and seek he found me in between the pontoons of the snorkel boat and hiding behind our boat !! so fun!! The boat Captains are now referring to me as the mermaid:))

as soon as my book comes out anyone that wants to buy it can see on the map where all this is happening!!!! (It's close!!)

the weather has been great for finding dolphins:)) found JoJo at grace Point stayed with him for 3 and 1/2 hours:) he was hungary had a small nick under his fin but other wise great. he once agin followed me from Leeward Cut almost all the way to the sand bar by OC. sooooo fun we encountered the hugest barracuda I have ever seen. My scooter crapped out right infront of the bar and JoJo went off to fish and hang. he seems to be looking for someone much of the time we were with him (sonared a lot) two other dolphins joined him on the bar one was Mo the other a dolphin I named white tip because there is a white spot on the end of her dorsal. when they met up one jumped clear out of the water then the other one sooo cool. they seemed really happy to see each other and were swimming around enthusiastically I got in with them they were so graceful and strong!!!! they let me watch and film!!!! while they rolled and swam upside down in the coral there was a lot of contact as well I'm so happy I got some footage which wasn't bad!! Mo has gained so much weight and grown longer I wasn't sure it was him but when I looked at the video I'm sure and he did look right at me a few times. eventually we will put this video up on my website:))
